Brindley Announces Employees of the Year for 2014

The highlight of the Brindley Construction Christmas celebration, as always, was the announcement of the 2014 Employee of the Year Awards. A Brindley tradition since 1967; these awards have honored many of the true craftsmen and professionals in the construction industry. The winners are selected by a vote of their co-workers meaning that these awards recognizes the person for exemplifying the company mission statement and shows the high esteem in which they are held by their peers.

The employee of the year for 2014 for Brindley Construction, LLC was Darryl Strickland. As Ronnie was describing the award recipient, prior to naming him, he described the winner as someone with a great attitude and that is always willing to work where ever he is needed. Darryl has worked for Brindley for 5 years and is liked by everyone. He is the son of Roger and Betty Strickland and is a native of Giles County.

Carol Vandenberghe received the Grady "Buddy" Rose award, which is presented to an employee of Brindley and Associates.

Carol has been with Brindley and Associates for over 4 years and her receiving this award is indicative of her hard work and the respect she has from her fellow team members. Carol has a Bachelor's degree in Accounting from Martin Methodist and received her MBA from University of North Alabama.

Other Brindley employees recognized that night for years of service to the company were:

Phillip Broadway	5 years
Katie Journey	10 years
Sammy Dickey	15 years
Chris Dickey	20 years
Kenneth Noah	20 years
Ronnie Brindley	30 years
Debbie Gordon	30 years
Ricky Stubblefield	30 years

Fountains of Franklin Villas and Memory Care

Work is underway for the addition of a memory care facility and independent living villas at the beautiful Fountains of Franklin, Assisted Living in Franklin, Tennessee. The Fountains of Franklin, since its opening a little over a year ago, has enjoyed unbelievable success, with a waiting list of people that wish to reside at the Fountains.

Goodworks, Unlimited has responded to the community's needs by beginning construction on a memory care facility which is connected to the original building. In addition 12 independent living units which contain over 2,000 sq. ft each are being built on the adjacent property. These villas are being customized for each resident to provide an upscale secure alternate to living in their private homes. They may receive full support services from the Fountains staff if they choose.

Randy Stanford is the project manager, Chris Dickey, superintendent and Melissa Pierce are the Brindley Team in charge of construction. They are enjoying working closely with Gary and Carmen Keckly of the Goodworks, Unlimited team.

Renovation of Ardmore Exxon

Jeff Brindley and Sammy Dickey are in the process of remodeling the Ardmore Exxon Station at Exit 1 of Interstate 65. The busy convenience store is getting a complete update with an addition that will contain new restroom facilities. We appreciate the owner Ramanjit Kaur placing her confidence in Brindley Construction again.

AWARDS & RECOGNITION

Brindley Construction wins Associated Builders and Contractors Excellence in Construction Award for North Alabama for Historic Preservation

The historic Jack Daniels Office

Brindley Construction was selected as the winner of the ABC Excellence in Construction Award for North Alabama in the category of Historic Preservation. Presentations were made at the banquet held at the Von Braun Civic Center. The renovation of the historic Jack Daniels Office, while one of our smaller projects this year, was definitely one of the most challenging. Accepting the award at the North Alabama Banquet was Charlie Evans, Ronnie Brindley and Tim Little with OLM. Kenneth Noah, Superintendent was unable to attend. We especially want to thank Steve May and Tim Millard of Jack Daniels for their support and help during this project.

The project is now being judged at the national level of competition. We are keeping our fingers crossed.

Brindley Construction, LLC, named Ceco Southern Division Builder of the Year and authorized Ceco Builder for Maury County, Tennessee

Ceco Building Systems Vice President of Sales Lynn Chesnut today announced that Pulaski-based Brindley Construction, LLC, has been named the authorized Ceco Builder for Maury County, Tennessee. Ceco, a division of NCI Building Systems, Inc., is a leading manufacturer of integrated custom-designed steel building systems.

In making the announcement Chesnut noted: “Brindley has been a leading Ceco Authorized Builder for decades, most recently being name Builder of the Year for the Ceco Southern Division. We have every confidence they will bring to Maury County, Columbia, Spring Hill, Mount Pleasant and the other Maury County communities the level of expertise in construction and construction management that will make them a valuable partner in the economic development of the area.”

Founded 54 years ago in Pulaski, Brindley established itself early as a multi-family builder and has expanded to a full-service construction company with extensive experience in commercial, industrial, institutional and medical projects. Brindley works with clients from construction planning through the completed project with teams of professional project managers, engineers, estimators, construction superintendents and experienced construction specialists in a full range of talents.

“We are pleased to have been named the authorized Ceco builder for Maury County,” said Ronnie Brindley, company president. “For Ceco to ‘authorize’ a builder, we have to meet the highest standards of professional and personal integrity, to prove that we are qualified to design and build for you, that we have the financial capability to see your project through to the end, and we have the integrity to follow-through to ensure that you are pleased with your new building or expansion.”

Brindley services include design-build, pre-construction, general construction and construction management whether for conventional or custom-designed metal building projects. In addition to recognition by Ceco Building Systems as a leader among its authorized builders, Brindley Construction has received multiple national awards and has been recognized by the Associated Builders and Contractors with the Eagle Award, an award representing excellence in construction.

Ceco Building Systems, a leading division of NCI Building Systems, designs and fabricates attractive, energy-efficient, affordable, easily expandable and “function-oriented” metal buildings. Ceco is well-known for its local builder support and design collaboration to meet specific space and functional requirements of all projects.
